Community Health Spotlight

Armed Forces

Some will work on military bases in the country, others will be deployed aboard.

These nurses may also work in hospitals or global response centers alongside deployed military personnel during natural disasters or times of war. Military nurses can work in potentially dangerous environments, like foreign war zones, and work under extremely stressful conditions.

Salaries vary depending on the level of education. One particularly interesting fact is that members of the armed forces generally receive discounts on tuition for further education, which means it is a fantastic opportunity for those who want to achieve a master's or a doctorate degree.
